Language requirements

Language requirements and	Université de Montréal is a French-taught institution and most courses are given in French. Proof of a minimum of B2 level French proficiency (from the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR)) is therefore required. Some programs of study may require a higher level and official tests; see the list of programs with particular requirements for further details.
Students from non-francophone universities	Students who are not from a French-speaking institution must provide proof of French proficiency delivered by the language centre of their home university, French Alliance, language schools, etc.
French language courses	Non-French-speaking students can take one 3-credit French language course per term offered by UdeM's École de français (students will be charged around 75$ for each 3-credit course for the course material). A placement test will be required; information will be provided to students once admitted. Please see our website for further details.

Immigration

It is the student's responsibility to ensure that immigration requirements are met and that they carry out the necessary immigration procedures to study abroad at UdeM as soon as they are accepted.

Procedures and timeframes may differ according to the student's nationality, the length of the exchange and the activities to be undertaken during their stay.

The Immigration team at UdeM international is the only office at UdeM that can assist international students with immigration-related matters: immigration@umontreal.ca.
